Objectives

Customer Satisfaction

In logistics, factors affecting customer satisfaction include delivery time, cost, packaging, and communication. For example, if a customer receives their order in a timely manner, at a reasonable cost, and in good condition, they are likely to be satisfied with the service

Increase market Share

The higher the market share, the more the company will sell than its competitors. Market share is an indicator of how big a company is and how much influence it has in its industry. It can also be an indicator of growth and success.

Maintain healthy competition in transport industry

Competition is good for consumers because it forces manufacturers to offer better deals – lower prices, better quality, new products and more choices. Also, Transportation is the centre of the world! And that must be go well by maintaining healthy competition among.
